

Collective cybersecurity experience powers your journey.

Startups and SMBs are responsible for security on Day One—not just for regulatory compliance, but to ensure supply chain security and meet customer requirements for data protection, privacy and trust.

Bad actors don't care about you or your business, and a single incident can derail your future plans. That's why there's Endari.

Endari builds cybersecurity into your operational DNA. We empower your business with security that accelerates your journey. Because cybersecurity isn't a nice-to-have. It's how you propel your business forward.

A new approach to cybersecurity, made for SMBs

Until now, it's been too hard and too expensive for SMBs to hire experienced cybersecurity talent, leaving them with limited choices: consulting firms who see security as a never-ending engagement, boutique vendors and MSSPs providing one-size-fits-all solutions. SMBs end up with minimal visibility, lack of customization, recommendations without execution (or vice-versa), and outsized budgets. The problem is, they all see cybersecurity as a series of defensive moves. We see it differently.

The path to cybersecurity maturity

Endari's goal is to ensure you achieve cybersecurity independence. That takes a partner to help secure your business so you can grow and prosper. Our unique cybersecurity maturity model supports you no matter where you are today, from unprepared for the inevitable attacks all the way to being two steps ahead of threats.

Driving it all is our collective capability: an experienced network of strategists and operators who guide, coach and augment your cyber resources through your entire journey—as much or as little as you need. We remove complexity and give you the confidence to take on every opportunity. Consultants and MSSPs can't deliver that. We can.
